Sowers, Aug. 6.—Let us thank God, who has preserved me from the most terrible of dangers it is the soldier's fate to encounter. It is a mirsele I am still alive without a scratch, but my heart is broken and I am overwheimed with grief at the fate of my poor officers—my poor soldiers. I dere not tell you how many I have lost; it would grieve you too much. Later I shall know the names of those you knew and loved but will never see again. The gallant follows fought like hous and heroes. Out of aixty-fire officers forty-seven were killed, wounded, and missing. At seven in the morning they were full of fifth and airlos—now they are killed. At three of capel in the evening my mitor inster Laterant Coloses, Dr. Shorhorting, was wounded at my side. A builte salesied, his abdomen, which was discharged but a few yards distance. He was able to aqueen my faind as hie was ustried off the field, but he has probably died before this. Saint Benaroux was wounded hedly and there are but little hopes for his recovery. I had him taken from the field in an ambu-lance. A builtst went through his chest. He behaved splendidly. Pierson was shot stone, deed. I have but are Capiains here out of thirty. The others are is Heaven. All my adjutants and almost all my sergeants and majors shared the same fast of the pioneers. Better of more gallant men never breathed. But five are left. Two, who were left with the baggang, were either sabred or taken and that was doubtless the reason we were not more vigorously pursued. Had such been the case the discrete would have been fearful. It is bad enough as it is. The battle begun at half-past seven, after singlet. There was a pouring rain, in, which we had to shand without tents or fire, or the down in the mud, during the previous dey. We had marched 72 kilometres from the battle field to Saverne. The part 50 kilometres we got over during the night, pell incit, without storping or desping. War, is a fearful security.

The report of firearms brought out the people tom the houses, who rushed upon the Men were falling, while others were running away, and still others went in pursuit.

The Commisserry of Police of Rue Langler now exclaimed, "Who will follow me? come on citizens." Upon this he rushed upon the rioters, who, having no more ammunition and seeing themselves likely to be overgowered, immediately fled, followed by the people, exclaiming, "They are Prussiansk kill them?"

The leader of the band was almost immediately apprehended. A tall, well-dressed manwas also arrested at might. He called himself an Englishman, but spoke with power and with a strong German accent. He had numbers of sovereigns and gold Frederick pieces. Upwards of thirty arrests have been made, including the originator of the plot.

Paris being in a state of seige, this act comes under the head of offences to be tried by military law. A military tribunal will sit this evening. It is next to certain that the men who have been taken red-banded will have a short shrift for their cowardly, washout, and preposterous attack. It is certain that the Republicans had nothing to do with it.

The Press gives the following explanation of the movements of the Pressians: After the battle of Forbach, on the 6th inst., the army of frince Charles advanced and established its headquarters at St. Avoid. After the battle of Weissenburg the army of the Frince Royal went by way of Saverne to Nancy. While this army, having no opposition on its front advanced on the route to Paris, as far as Basle Duc, Frederick Charles was making a bold curve, endeavoring to turn the French troops at Metz, thus cutting off the communications between McMahon and Bazaine. Some are for France because she is Protestant. The truth is that neither nation is plous enough to ground arma and go to praying on Sunday. There is very little religious faith and a great deal of what is called infidelity among flas males of both countries. France recognizes all religions and the State endows the Protestant and Jewish churches in proportion to the number of worshipers with the same liberal support that is accorded from public revenues to the Catholic. The royal family of Prussia is part Catholic and part Protestant. In the North German Confederation there are only 3,380,990 Protestants to 8,131,365 Catholics. In the South German Confederation there are only 3,380,990 Protestants to 5,137,304 Catholics. The German army now in France is probably more than one third Catholic, and there is a very poor reason for allowing religion to determine any man's sympathics in this war. The Hog Order.

Yesterday Michael McDermout and alle rued out an order of deliver; against the city for four longs, and elasmed $20 damages sustained. It seems that the little daughter of Mr. McDermout had been sent to the drug-store for meniotine for her father, who was then lying sick in bod, and, fence near where the hogs were kept. On returning from the drug-store see found the fence down and the hogs gone. The little girl, not to be outdone, followed on down to the Twelfhestrest pound, where she found the hogs usst about being put into the peas. She informed the officer in charge of what she had seen of the boys and their actions, but of course the property could not be returned withous process of law. The case being called resterday brice. Justice St. vens, the damage was dropped, and, by agreement of the aitorners, Judge Burnett and Mr. Mix, the Justice ordered that the hogs be delivered to their rightful owner. It appeared in ordenet but Mr. McDermott had used proper precautions to keep his hogs inside of he pea.

The French fleet in the Baltic has taken a southward course, and hourly it is expected that they will bombard Kiel and Straisund. We would be glast if they would raske an attempt at it. This would offer an opportanity to prove whether the French silos would be able to withstand Frussian seventy-two and ninely-six pounders loaded with prismatical powder. For, long before reaching those ports within shot, they themselves would be the targets of the German cannon, and they will be lucky if they can retire unhurt after trying to get into the neighborhood of those cities. The mouth of the barbor of Kiel is very much like the narrows between the extreme casterly shore of Staten Island and that of Long Island; and in the same way as a New York and the state of the harbor of Kiel (as Holtecan, Fradriksort, Ellerbeck, Laboe, at Balt and Bossand) a number of strong forts, whose cross fres will surely be felt by the approaching Franch menof way.
